Analisis Group Decision-Making dalam Sikap Abstain Indonesia terhadap Resolusi Nuklir Iran

Abstract

Indonesia’s position in non-permanent membership of United Nations Security Council (UNSC) in 2007-2008 was strategic. This position was crucial during Iran’s nuclear installation development. Problem occurred when Iran refused to report its nuclear program to International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA). Resolution 1737/2006 by UNSC is an early warning for Iran and economic limitations. Iran’s uncooperative behavior eventually ignited economic restriction in Resolution 1747/2007 that is approved by Indonesia. However, the next decision by UNSC, that is Resolution 1803/2008, was voted abstain by Indonesia. In examining Indonesia’s change of policy, the writer uses group decision-making analysis focusing on concentric circles of the actors who influence the final decision-making leader, the president of Indonesia, Susilo Bambang Yudhoyono (SBY).
